The Listok considers that Russia can at most accept the demands Japan made before the war plus the cession of Port Arthur, the Liaoyang Peninsula and the Manchurian It adds: "We anticipate a rupture of the negotiations and a continuation of the war, which will assume a new character, a colonial war becoming a national one, Japan having to reckon with national Russia, not official Russia."

COUNCIL CONSIDERS TERMS. Czar Approves Decision That War Is Preferable to Granting Them.

The correspondent says the proposed cession of territory was rejected almost unanimously. The question of reimbursement was rejected after an animated debate. The Czar scarcely participated in the debate, but paced up and down the room most of the time. The correspondent adds:

LONDON LOOKS FOR FAILURE. No Expectation That Peace Conference Will Reach an Agreement.

Special Cable Despatch to THE SUN. LONDON, Aug. 12.—The latest public news here in regard to the peace conference says that according to Mr. Sato, the spokesman for the Japanese commission, here are indications that Russia's reply to the Japanese terms will be of such a nature that negotiations can continue. Nevertheless, in no circles here can there be found any expectation of peace resulting from the conference. There is one item in Japan's demands as reported which in diplomatic circles here is considered even more fatal to the prospects of Russia accepting the Japanese terms than the inclusion of an indemnity or the cession of Sakhalin. This is the provision limiting Russia's naval power in the Far East. If this is one of the terms, and if Japan refuses to make a modification, it alone, in the opinion of high functionaries in London, will suffice to render the conference abortive, for it would amount to a limitation of Russia's sovereignty, and to this she would never consent. But the attitude of Russia toward peace has been so fully discussed by THE SUN'S St. Peters-burg correspondent that there is no need to dwell on it further.

Mr. Sykes, his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Harvey and their daughter, all of 960 Park avenue, started out for Pelham Bay. HOTEL GUESTS DIVIDE ON RESULT OF THE CONFERENCE.

Between Arguments They Slap the New Hampshire Mosquito, Who Works Quietly—Sate's Dramatic Announcement of the Receipt of Russia's Answer

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Aug. 12,-This has een a dull day about the Hotel Wentworth. It has rained to begin with; the envoys and their suites have been at the navy yard all day, and the uncertainty is getting on the nerves of attaches, correspondents and even guests. The hotel people have caught the infection now. Girls, matrons and nice old gentlemen who will tell you that they have been coming to the hotel for twenty years are debating on the chance for peace, on Sakhalin, on indemnity. They ask you at the table for the latest news from the navy yard and whether Mr. Witte will pay for the war. Peace or no peace-the debate is on all over the corridors. Every man, woman and child above the knee is on one side or the other. The war party points to the quick exchange of propositions which seems to indicate "No," to the despatches from St. Petersburg, to the few pessimistic words which Sato dropped in the morning. The war party is in the majority. The peace side says that no bargain ever opened with an offer of genuine terms. They ask what Mr. Witte came all this way for if he is going to call it off in the first week. The debate has raged hot and heavy between the Japanese and Russian correspondents on the front stoop. They have held an unofficial imitation conference all day. The Japanese and Russian correspondents have mixed from the first with genuine good feeling. By tacit consent they limit their debate to the prospect of peace outting the war and its causes.

"We will not be here next Saturday. We will be gone by Wednesday," said a Rus-

"What was Witte sent for if not to make peace? Did any nation ever fail to make peace after a conference was called?" asks Jap, with spirit.

And then they are off. Sakhalin Island, the Liaotung Peninsula, indemnity—these words fly thick and fast in Russian basso and Jap tenor. It ends always with the Japanese declaring that peace will be declared and the Russians rooting for war. Matsumoto, the Japanese parliamen-arian, walked into one of these arguments and declared his own opinion. He said: "Just at the moment when it seems as though negotiations must be broken off they will go on, and by Russian initiative. From the beginning the Japanese have known that the Russian answer to the Japanese terms would be the threat to break off negotiations. But they'll never carry out their threat. Mark my words, there will be peace." THE ENVOY'S BUSY DAY parties to-day. The envoys got away at 9 o'clock for the navy yard. The regular crowd watched Takahira and Komura take their carriage at the front entrance. Takahira, who never "puts on dog" when he can help it, was dressed in a plain business suit and a Panama hat. Komura wore frock coat and a light soft hat. Their automobile carried the Russians away a few minutes later. Just after noon the Japanese auto returned, and out jumped Sato. He was surrounded like the man with the ball in a football game. "Gentlemen, gentlemen, a little room," he said, and made his way to the back plazza.

Standing on a chair he announced that he was the bearer of a message from both sides. It looked like a break; the Wentworth held its breath. With the deliberation of a judge at a prize debate he unfolded a paper and read a statement to the effect the Russian terms had been received by their excellencies, the Japanese, and that the Japanese would return their answer to-day at 30'clock or to-morrow at 3 o'clock The whole Wentworth, which had hung breathless on his words, gave a groan of disappointment. Mr. Sato stopped to shake hands at the door with Miss Pilsen, his partner in the "Going to Jerusalem" game last night, and went back to the conference. There was just a glimpse of Karaskovitz at lunch time. His auto scorched up. He jumped out, ran for a paper, and was again. He brought news, however, that the meeting would go on to-morrow and since then the Wentworth has done little but hold debates and slap mosquitoes

THE NEW HAMPSHIRE MOSQUITO.

Surely this New Hampshire mosquito deserves scientific study. He is neither large and birdlike in his movements, like the Jersey mosquito, nor yet graceful, agile or noisy, like the Long Island stinger. He is a direct, voiceless, hand stinging mosquito. He doesn't talk about it. He approaches you with the business-like directness of a Japanese envoy, quietly gets his drill in place and lets you have it. If they are thick at the navy yard these negotiations will go through fast.

While the envoys labored at the navy yard the underlings of the Japanese party were having a trouble of their own. They sent to Portsmouth early in the week for a safe to hold papers of state. A small safe was hired from a local store and placed in the Oriental headquarters, and, with the state papers inside, locked up. This morning some of the secretaries tried to open it and failed. They had forgotten the combi-nation. An auto was despatched to Portsmouth and the safe's owner was brought back with the combination. The Japanese who had been afraid that the papers might be demanded on this historic day, breathed freely again. Every time the official automobiles come scorching up the driveway there is a crisis at the Wentworth. At half past 7, while most of the guests were at dinner,

HOTEL GAIETY.

Because of this possibly the hotel is gay again to-night. Visitors from Rye Beach and Portsmouth are here for the Saturday night dance and the ballroom is packed.

AMERICA, ENGLAND, FRANCE AND RUSSIA AS FRIENDS.

Editor of "Echo de Paris" Thinks That Grouping Would Form a Foundation for World Peace—Significance of French Floet's Visit to England-King's Trip.

LONDON, Aug. 12.-The feature of the week here which has stood out promi-nently has been the visit of the French fleet. This has been a complete and undiluted success. It has been a veritable feast of friendship, with every mark of genuineness. The descriptions and comments of the French press show how deep an effect it has had on French public opinion. Pages of THE SUN could be filled with quotations showing this. Let one taken haphazard suffice. The Echo de Paris says: "Now 90 per cent. of Frenchmen are as strongly Anglophile as they were strongly Anglophobe four years ago. Frenchm regard King Edward as a wise and farseeing monarch and a gentleman friend. Great Britain's behavior in the first stage of the Moroccan controversy won France's friendship. She was loyal to the backbone ready to back us, no matter what occurred We felt this deeply. Germany realized it

The editor of the same journal in an interview says: "I hope that France, now that she and Great Britain are real and lasting friends, may be able to convince England that it is to her interest also to cement the friendship of France's ally, Russia. The United States would make a fourth, and the friendship of these four nations would form a foundation for the peace of the world.

While France and England are thus cementing their friendship there does not seem to be any relief from the uneasiness which is emanating from Berlin and permeates the whole of Europe. A week ago it seemed probable that King Edward and Emperor William would meet some time in the coming week. This is now definitely contradicted. As King Edward's movements on the Continent are always watched with such keen interest the following outine of his immediate movements may be interesting. His visit to Marienbad is, of course, entirely for rest and health. So far from meeting the Kaiser, he will cross Germany during the night, so even the isual receptions of the German authorities will be avoided. He will leave for Flushing on Monday and will take a special train direct to Ischl. He will visit Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria; who is spending a holiday there. The visit will be private, and was arranged on the shortest notice between the two courts, withou. the intermediary of the English and Austrian foreign offices. No minister will be present. King Edward will spend one night in Ischl and then go to Marienbad.

As stated a week ago, King Edward is determined to bring Germany into the peace line, but apparently he does not conider the time ripe for a personal interview. There is no disguising the fact that the British Foreign Office regards the Kaiser with no small suspicion, and relations between the two courts are also very strained, not to say anything stronger. An illustration of this appears in a long article discussing Anglo-German relations, written by the Berlin correspondent of the Neue Zuricher Zeitung, who says that some weeks ago, when a high English personage was leaving Berlin, it was expected that the Kalser would request him to transmit his greetings to the English Court, but the Kaiser frigidly said: "Our relations with England are practically suspended." It would be wrong perhaps to accept this as the actual, literal truth, but those who know the conditions under which the Jerman press works, especially where the Kaiser himself is concerned, cannotefail to much else that has appeared of late.

METROSTYLE PIANOLA or PIANOLA PIANO

MANY of the greatest masterpieces are so difficult that only one or two of the very foremost pianists can play them. Liszt's "At the Spring," Balakirew's "Islamey" and the arrangement by Rosenthal of Chopin's op. 64 No. I are instances.

Yet to the Pianola they are just as easy as the simplest folk song. And wonderful as this may seem, it is by no means the chief of the Pianola's claims on the attention of music-lovers. With the Metrostyle (which is found in no other instrument than the Pianola and Pianola Piano) you can play the rolls that Grieg, Moszkowski, Chaminade, etc., have marked, in the same manner, and at the same tempo as these artists rendered them.

Musical knowledge is not the essential thing in Pianola playing, but musical taste, and to a greater or less extent this is common to all.

The latest form of the Planole is the Planole Plano. This instrument has the outward appearance of a regular upright plane, but the Metrostyle Pianela has been built into it so cleverly that the change from hand playing to Pianela playing can be accomplished instantaneously.

The piano itself in tone, action, etc., is of the highest grade known, and nothing is lost by reason of its union with the Pianola. Its cost is no greater than a piano of equal quality and a Metrostyle Pianola in separate cases. Your present piano will be accepted at fair valuation in exchange.

Prices of the Pianola $250 and $300. Prices of the Pianola Piano $500 to $1,000. Both instruments purchasable on moderate monthly installments.

HOW TO LIVE TO BE 105.

Recipe by Vigorous Mrs. Elizabeth Hunt Who Will Be There This Month

Grandma Elizabeth Hunt, said to be the ldest woman on Long Island, is getting ready to celebrate her 105th birthday on Aug. 31, when she will take her first automobile ride. She is living with her grand daughter, Mrs. H. Wickes, at 407 Adelphi street, Brooklyn. The venerable woman intends to spend the day at Meriden, Conn., where many relatives live. Mrs. Hunt is a native of Lancaster, Pa. In 1827 she went to Brooklyn, and lived there until 1858, when she was widowed She then moved to Middletown, Conn., but later on she returned to Brooklyn which has been her home since. A physician interested in Mrs. Hunt, as a specimen of longevity, recently declared that she was in perfect health. Her sight and hearing have been falling lately. Being asked once if she could account for her long life, she said she followed a few simple rules, namely, going to bed early and arising early; working hard, getting along without servants and doing her own housework. Speaking of diet she said:

"I have always eaten just what I liked. Nearly everything in the way of food is good provided you don't eat too much."
Here are her views on the servant girl

"If women would spend more time at housework and devote less time to non-sense, they'd be better off. I worked hard until I was 9) years old. I never could abide servants. They cause more worry than they offset by the good they do."

Mrs. Hunt frequently goes out for a walk, and when out shopping with Mrs. Wickes she walks to the shopping district, a mile from her home. She says ride too much in trolley cars and carriages, and that is one reason loctors flourish.

NO EPIDEMIC OF TYPHOID.

Few Cases at Bath Beach and Bensonht This Year, Property Owners Say.

The talk of there being a good deal of yphoid fever in Bath Beach and Bensonhurst has stirred up the property owners of both places and they have held a meeting and declared that many of the published reports were false. The reports, they say have hurt both places.

Justice Cornelius Furgueson of Benson hurst sent a letter yesterday to Health Commissioner Darlington calling his attention to the reports and asking him to make a full investigation to determine just how much truth they contain. Justice Furgueson much truth they contain. Justice rurgueson is one of the property owners' committee. There are ten members of this committee, including five physicians.

The physicians state that the number of typhoid fever cases in Bensonhurst this year is about the average number for many years past. The actual number in both Bensonhurst and Bath Beach this season the state of the particular than the pean only then the twenty-two.

Bensonhurst and Bath Beach this seaso since June 1 has been only twenty-two, the doctors say. This is not a large number, considering that both sections have a summer population of 12,000 to 15,000 people. The committee takes particular exception to an alleged interview with one of Dr. Darlington's assistants, who was quoted as saying that the residents of Bath Beach and Bensonhurst were living as a whole as if they were in the country, using wells and they were in the country, using wells and failing to use sewers. This statement is absolutely false, the committee says.

Bath Beach and Bensonhurst are in the Thirtieth ward of Brooklyn, but comprise only about one-seventh of the ward. The Thirtieth ward of brooklyh, but comprise only about one-seventh of the ward. The boundaries of these two sections are as follows: Seventy-seventh street on the northeast, Twenty-fifth avenue on the southeast, Gravesend Bay on the southwest and Fourteenth avenue on the northwest.

There have been forty-nine typhoid case in the entire ward. CLEANING UP THE BLOCK. Dwellers in West 87th Street Take a Hand

Orphans, Which Are Saved for Owne. PATERSON, N. J., Aug. 12 .- A month ago

PATERSON, N. J., Aug. 12.—A month ago Robert Hartshorn, an importer of Highland, N. J., brought into this country from London a Berkshire sow. The sow was ill after the ocean voyage, and to be certain that it was not affected with disease it was sent by the authorities to the United States quarantine station at Athenia, five miles from this city. He finally hit upon the plan of bringing up the piglets on bottled milk. The same precautions were taken as when the milk is fed to human bables. Antiseptic washes were used and the two dozen

The quarantine charges thrived on the treatment, which was the first of its kind ever practised at the station. The young pigs, hale and hearty and with advanced tendencies to root, were released yesterday to Mr. Hartshorn.
